Game Plan

To some, sports is life. To many others, it's a central passion point. And to almost all, it represents compelling, engaging and consistent content fueled by the combination of real-life action and drama (the intersection of which we colloquially refer to as “score-ylines”) unfolding before their eyes.

With almost 11,000 national live sporting events airing annually, TV viewers have the opportunity to indulge in one of their favorite passions - sports - literally every single day of the year. Whether it's football, baseball, basketball or international cricket, there is always something live on TV with an average of 8 major sports, along with countless niche ones, active in any month.

It's the “No Days Off” programming calendar that places TV at the heart of the sports ecosystem. Television feeds a virtually never-ending stream of content to mobile apps and alternative devices; it creates limitless conversations on social media, blogs and sports-related websites; and it brings friends, soon-to-be friends, family, fellow alumni and people who share common interests together in a communal experience where passion elicits emotion on any given day.

People have an insatiable appetite for content of any kind that surrounds their passions and, for sports, it all begins with TV and multi-screen TV brands.

The Passion For Sports Never Rests

Sports Are Almost Universally Watched & Followed, To At Least Some Extent, By Most Of The Population

Within this universe, almost one-quarter (24%) of respondents consider themselves an “intense” sports fan

■ Persons 15-74   ■ Males 15-74   ■ Females 15-74

This Passion Around Sports Is Further Fueled By “Score-y-lines” Which Engage Viewers Well Beyond Just The Numbers

“Score-y-lines” sit at the intersection of outcomes and interests; they humanize an event’s results to engage even the most casual of sports fans (i.e., “the masses”)

Scores

Chicago Cubs win Game 7 of the World Series 8-7 in extra innings

Cleveland Cavaliers defeat Golden State in Game 7 of the NBA Finals 93-89

Sergio Garcia wins the 2017 Masters in a one-hole playoff

Storylines

The victory ended 108 years of championship futility for one of the most iconic pro teams

Cleveland, led by returning hometown star LeBron James, came back from down 3-1 against the winningest regular season team ever

Garcia’s win finally ends his 0-73 drought in majors tournaments

Beyond The Historic World Series Or Epic NBA Finals, The Past Year Has Featured A Never Ending Stream Of “Score-ylines”

Patriots overcomes the largest deficit in Super Bowl history to defeat the Atlanta Falcons

Leicester City's beats 5000-1 odds to win the English Premier League

Mississippi State stuns UCONN in the Final Four, ending their 111 game winning streak

Former walk-on wide receiver scores winning TD in Clemson's thrilling National Championship victory over Alabama

American swimmer Katie Ledecky obliterates the competition at the Summer Olympics, winning the 800m freestyle by almost 12 seconds

Kobe Bryant scores 60 points in his final game on the same night that Golden State wins their record-breaking 73rd game

In The “Physical” Social Realm, Sports Is A Big Driver Of Out-Of-Home TV Viewing Which Can Add Substantial Reach

Whether it’s to:

- Just get out of the house and go to a local establishment for the game
  - 51% go to a bar or restaurant on a regular basis
- Meet up with friends for the “social camaraderie” aspect
  - More people participate in March Madness brackets for social camaraderie (42%) than to win money (39%)
- Socialize with your sports fanatic friends or alumni away from your home
  - 10% of people (6% of males / 15% of females) who don’t identify as a sports fan are a “friend of a sports fan”
- Have the opportunity to watch live action “out-of-market” games
  - A large number of traditional powerhouses and contemporary winners’ fanbases are located out of their home market; for instance 61% of the Golden State Warriors fans’ are outside the West Region; 54% of the Cleveland Cavaliers’ fans are outside the Midwest
  - 60% of Daily Fantasy Sports participants watch games involving teams they don’t usually follow because they are following their fantasy players

Out-Of-Home Viewing can significantly extend the reach of televised live sporting events:

- ABC received a 17% lift in average P6+ viewership across the seven games of the 2016 NBA Finals between Golden State & Cleveland; the lift jumped to 25% among P18-34
- Among March Madness bracket participants, 12% said their top way of following the games was viewing on TV in a public location
