'Tis The Season To Television

With powerful, iconic programming like the Macy's Parade & NFL on Thanksgiving, It's A Wonderful Life on Christmas Eve, NBA on Christmas Day, Countdown shows on New Year's Eve, and the Rose Parade & college football bowl games on New Year's Day, it's not the dinner table that's the central hub of family gatherings during the holidays, it's the television.

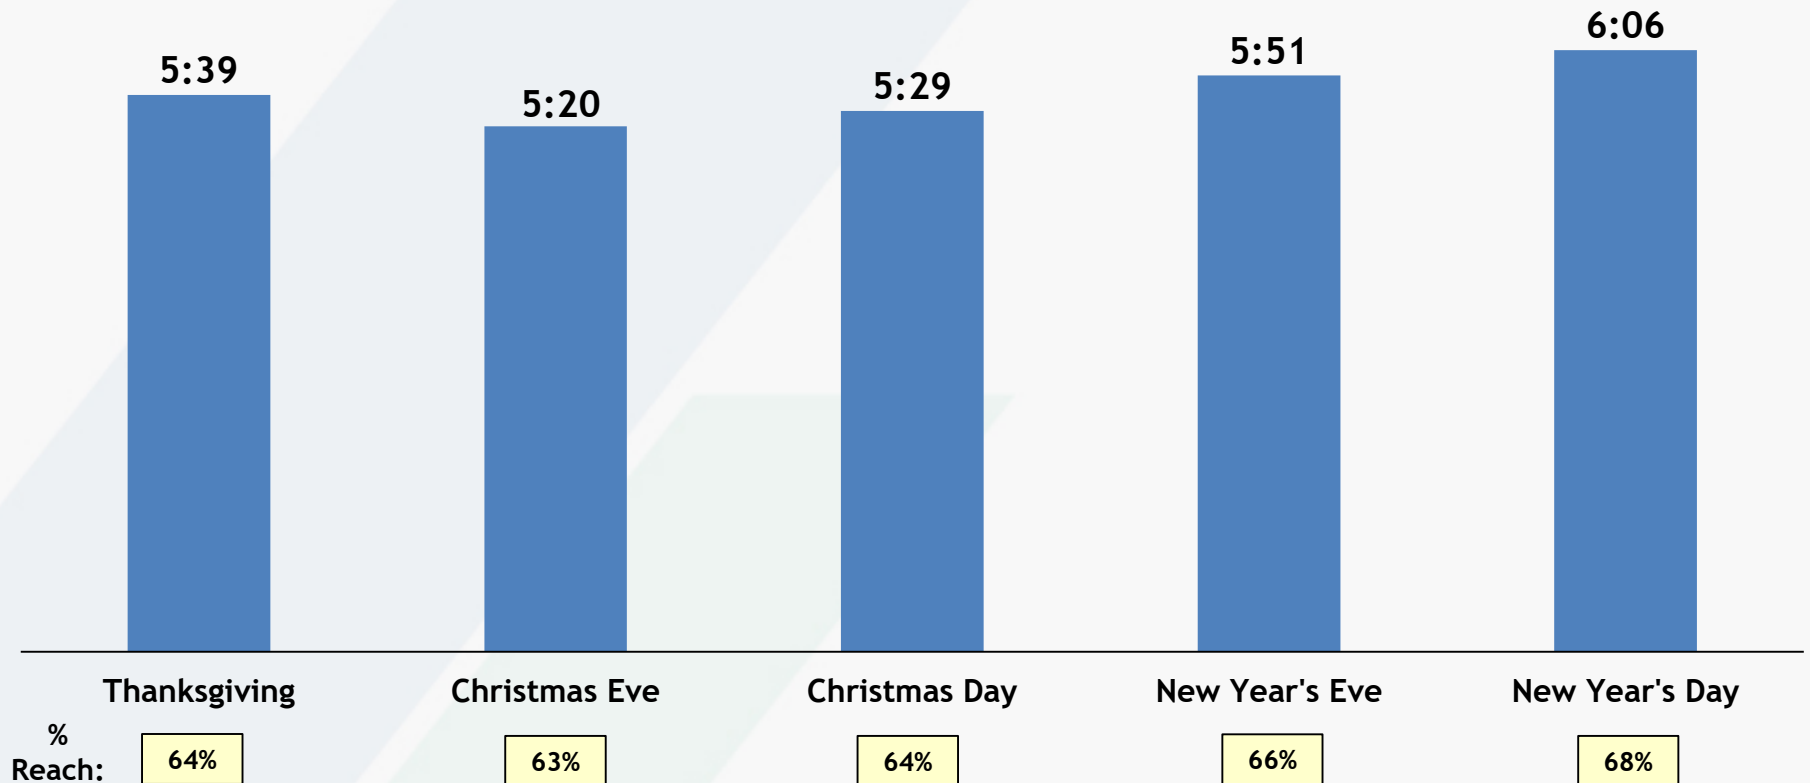

This love of television, and the 5+ hours spent with it during each holiday, extends beyond people's families and to the online social world where people can't wait to share their anticipation and reactions to their favorite TV programming.

We monitored the top trending topics on Twitter during the five 4Q holidays and found that:

- Overall, Ad-Supported TV accounted for 75% of the top 10 trending Twitter topics
- Each holiday features multiple entertainment & sports TV programs that “own” the online social conversation
- A few other entertainment-related pieces of content trended, but nothing comes close to the dominance of Ad-Supported TV during the holidays
 - While 45 ad-supported sports & entertainment TV programs trended, only a few other platforms had any topic trend - YouTube (1), music (1), video games (1), online streaming (1)

On Average, P13+ Watched Over Five Hours Of “Live” Ad-Supported TV Programming During Each Holiday

P13+ Time Spent Viewing “Live” Ad-Supported TV

Quantifying The Online Social Popularity Of Ad-Supported TV During Key 4th Quarter Holidays

- Beyond viewing, we were interested in examining the greater role that TV plays in people's lives during key 4Q holidays when people traditionally gather with family and friends. Therefore, we analyzed the impact of TV programming on the top 10 trending Twitter topics over five holiday time periods
 - Thanksgiving (Thursday, 11/23/17), Christmas Eve (Sunday, 12/24/17), Christmas Day (Monday, 12/25/17), New Year's Eve (Sunday, 12/31/17), New Year's Day (Monday, 1/1/18)
- Since trending topics are everchanging and a slight lag time typically exists for topics to start trending, we monitored "points in time" each day at :45 minutes past the hour to capture what people were talking about online during that hour
- We also wanted to specifically hone in on the time periods when people are most likely gathered with family and friends, therefore we focused on monitoring a 13-hour time period ("all day") for the national holidays and a four-hour time period ("primetime") for the holiday eves
 - Thanksgiving Day / Christmas Day / New Year's Day: 11:45a, 12:45p, 1:45p, 2:45p, 3:45p, 4:45p, 5:45p, 6:45p, 7:45p, 8:45p, 9:45p, 10:45p, 11:45p
 - Christmas Eve / New Year's Eve: 8:45p, 9:45p, 10:45p, 11:45p
- Geography reflects U.S.-based Twitter trending data while ad-supported TV topics reflect two types:
 - Direct: specific hashtags of televised entertainment shows, sports events or news programming
 - Related: topics associated with specific TV programming including athletes, general team hashtags, collegiate school mentions (school & nicknames for football & basketball), show characters, celebrity personalities, and specific TV-related news references
